What did Dakota State University's Educator Preparation Program provide tha...

Our professors would sometimes bring us into a classroom of young students to put into action the methods that we were learning in the course. This real life execution of methods we were learning about was beneficial.

DSU allowed me to grow in and out of the classroom. The instructors were always ready to help me with classroom management questions, instructional questions, or curriculum questions. Knowing that I had a strong community of teachers that were on my side made me feel so good through my first year of teaching.

Using formative and summative assessments to assess and track my students learning of the material.

The thing that helped me the most was taking a curriculum and creating a lesson plan around that curriculum. My school uses a curriculum, so being able to read through one and plan a lesson was very helpful.

Providing hands on experiences/ field experiences

I thought that a whole year of student teaching in the same grade was not beneficial for me. I would have appreciated two experiences in different grade levels.
