Upon completion of the A.S. in Software Development, students will:

- be able to design, construct, test and maintain computer application software or systems.
- be able to write, test and maintain computer programs and/or web applications in several languages.
- be able to build web-enabled applications.