Why get vaccinated?

The vaccine is safe.

The COVID-19 vaccination helps your immune system defend itself without using the virus or risking infection of disease.

Before the novel coronavirus, which causes COVID-19, scientists researched similar coronaviruses called SARS and MERS. This past research provided the head start needed to develop the COVID-19 vaccination. The technologies behind the vaccine were built on decades of research and experience. With this knowledge, scientists across the globe were able to expedite the development of the vaccine.

We can protect one another.

COVID-19 hospitalizations and mortality rates have been higher per-population in small towns than in larger cities. Fortunately, the vaccines are nearly 100% effective at decreasing the chance of hospitalization and death—and you can easily get one to help protect your family, friends, and our community.

When enough people are immune to a disease, it cannot be spread. Population immunity protects entire communities and is especially needed to protect those unable to get the vaccination themselves, like young children and people with medical conditions.

With the COVID-19 Delta variant on the rise, Madison Regional Health System is strongly encouraging our community to get vaccinated. We want a healthy and productive community where we can safely enjoy school, employment, ball games, shopping, dining out, and gathering.

Together, we are stronger.
